ECCLESIASTICAL COMMISSION, IRELAND.

REPORT of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland, for the Year ending 1 August 1835.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY CONSTANTINE HENRY EARL OF MULGRAVE, LORD LIEUTENANT-GENERAL, AND GENERAL GOVERNOR OF IRELAND.

WE, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland, whose hands and corporate seal are hereunto annexed, do beg leave, pursuant to the provisions contained in the Act 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37, to report to your Excellency the several proceedings of the Commissioners for the year ending the 1st day of August 1835.

The attention of the Commissioners within the above period has been occupied principally in,

First. The examination of the items and sums of money required by the Estimates for providing things necessary for the celebration of Divine Service in the several Parishes in Ireland.

Second. The investigation of outstanding claims on account of the Vestry Cess for the year 1833, and of arrears of Cess for preceding years.

Third. The examination of the Estimates furnished by the provincial architects for the repairs of Churches and Chapels.

Fourth. The sale of Perpetuities.

Fifth. Demising and setting the See-houses, and Mensal or Demesne Lands of or belonging to the Bishoprics, the temporalities of which have become vested in the Commissioners.

Sixth. The suspension of the appointments of Clerks to such Benefices as became vacant within the year, and in which Divine Worship had not been celebrated for the three years next preceding February 1833.

And Seventh. In the several other important matters in connexion with the execution of the trusts reposed in them.

1st. With respect to the items and sums of money required by the Estimates for providing things necessary for the celebration of Divine Service in each Church and Chapel for the year commencing at Easter 1834, we have to report to your Excellency that the Estimates furnished by the respective incumbents underwent a careful examination, both as to the nature of the items and the amount of the sums demanded for each specific purpose; and after the expiration of six months from Easter 1834, the Commissioners, for the accommodation of the parties concerned, directed that payment should be made of a moiety of all clerk's and sexton's salaries, and of such other sums as were demanded for purposes connected with the celebration of Divine Service, and that the remaining moiety should be discharged upon the termination of the year at Easter last, which payments were made accordingly. The monies issued for such purposes within the period, amounted, as per the annexed account, to the sum of 29,816 l. 2 s. 7 d.; but it is to be observed, that owing to the delay which took place on the part of several of the parishes, in furnishing the information required by the Commissioners previously to the Accounts of each parish being closed on the 1st instant, the payments under this head were not all completed within the year.

2d. The investigation of the claims outstanding on account of Vestry Cess for the year 1833, and of arrears of Cess for preceding years, has been proceeded with; and although the Commissioners cannot report that all demands on this account are finally closed, yet claims to the amount of 10,268 l. 13 s. have been admitted and discharged within the year, thereby making the total expenditure incurred under this head, since the opening of the Commission, amount to 46,259 l. 6 s. 10 d. The way in which this expenditure has been met was, in the first instance, by an advance to the amount of 46,000 l., made by the Government for that purpose; and this has been since repaid from and out of a portion of 100,000 l. which the Commissioners of Public Works were authorized to advance to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners in the way of loan, under the Act 4 & 5 Will. IV. c. 90.

One of the most onerous and important duties which have engaged the attention of the Commissioners, was that connected with the repair of Churches and Chapels. The provincial architects having been employed in their respective provinces in inspecting and reporting upon the nature and extent of the repairs of such Churches as appeared to be in the greatest need of repair, and in furnishing detailed Estimates of such repairs as they recommended to be immediately executed, detailed Estimates were accordingly furnished by them, and have been carefully examined; but as the state of the Commissioners' funds only admitted of a selection being made of the most pressing cases, and as delay only increased the evil, they deemed it prudent and indispensable to enter into engagements to the amount of 75,000 l., of which sum 21,000 l. was reserved and set apart from and out of their general fund; and the residue of the unappropriated 100,000 l., which the Commissioners of Public Works are authorized to advance, was made applicable to this purpose, the Commissioners having received an assurance that the Commissioners of Public Works in Ireland, with the consent of the Lords of the Treasury, would advance the same when required.

To the 1st instant an expenditure of 11,336 l. 8 s. 6 d. was incurred in the partial execution of these repairs, leaving engagements to the amount of 63,663 l. 11 s. 6 d. outstanding on that day; but it is to be observed, that in the engagements entered into provision had not been made for the repairs of the greater portion of the Churches throughout Ireland.

And we have to report under the head of Incidental Repairs of Churches which sustained injury by reason of any unforeseen event, an expenditure to the amount of 447 l. 15 s. 8 d.

The Commissioners have also to state that applications have been received for aid, not only for the enlargement of several Churches where the accommodation has been reported to be quite insufficient for the respective congregations, but also for the rebuilding or erection of Sixty Churches; and in many of these applications the parties have expressed their willingness to contribute sums, varying in amount from 60 l. to 600 l. Several of these appeared to be so pressing, that the Commissioners have been induced to direct a special memorandum to be taken of the cases, in order that as soon as they have any funds available for such purpose, the wants of the parties may be provided for.

We regret to state that some Churches have been reported to us as having sustained malicious and wanton injuries within the year, and in such of these cases as the amount of injury was sufficient to justify the expense necessary to be incurred, the Commissioners have, under the provisions of the statute, applied to the Grand Juries of the respective counties in which the Churches were situated for compensation, to be levied by Presentments; and this course they have pursued, not so much for purposes of revenue, as to deter from the repetition of such offences.

4th. In what relates to the sale of Perpetuities, we have to report that 164 applications were received within the year, thereby making the total number of applications received since the establishment of the Commission amount to 270. In 116 cases the terms of purchase have been declared by the Board in addition to those mentioned in our last annual Report, and a sum amounting to 89,552 l. 19 s. 10½ d. has been received within the year on account of Perpetuities. Three of the applicants have declined to complete their purchases, and in two instances arbitrations were demanded, the tenants having expressed themselves dissatisfied with the amount of purchase-money as declared by the Commissioners, in one of which the arbitration was proceeded with, but the award not being satisfactory to the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council the purchase was not concluded.

The Commissioners having obtained surveys and valuations of the Mensal and Demesne Lands of the sees of Clonfert and Killalla, these premises were advertised to be let, and it appearing that the proposals received from John Eyre Trench, Esq. for the mansion-house and demesne lands of Clonfert, and from Walter James Bourke, Esq., for the mansion-house and a part of the demesne lands of Killalla, were in every respect the most eligible, and his Excellency the Lord Lieutenant having approved of the terms proposed by these parties, the premises have been demised to them respectively, both having fined down their rents to a considerable considerable amount. The subsequent proposal of Mr. Thomas Kirkwood for the residue of the mensal lands of Killalla has also been accepted by the Commissioners, and been approved by your Excellency.

The timber growing upon the lands of Clonfert has also been valued at a sum of 1,491 l., which the tenant has agreed to pay in five annual instalments. On the lands of Killalla it did not appear that there was any timber to be valued at the time of making the demise aforesaid.

Similar proceedings have also been taken in regard to a survey and valuation of the see-house, and mensal and demesne lands of Waterford; these, however, will hereafter become the property of his Grace the Archbishop of Cashel, as, under the provisions of the Act, his Grace has elected the see-house of Waterford, with the mensal and demesne lands thereunto belonging, to be the future residence of the Bishops of the united dioceses, and his Grace will surrender the see-house of Cashel, and a portion of the lands thereto belonging, equivalent to the mensal and demesne lands of Waterford.

Since the date of our last Report the temporalities of the sees of Raphoe and of Ossory have respectively become vested in the Commissioners, with the exception of the see-house and mensal and demesne lands of Ossory, which are made by the Act of Parliament the future residence of the Bishops of the united sees of Ferns, Leighlin and Ossory, and in lieu whereof it is provided that the see-house, and the mensal and demesne lands of Ferns and of Leighlin shall vest in the Commissioners.

A valuation and survey accordingly of the mensal and demesne lands, as well of the see of Raphoe as of those of Ferns and Leighlin, are now in course of being made by competent persons, and the Commissioners hope soon to be able to give public notice, that they are ready to receive proposals for the letting and demising the see-houses and mensal and demesne lands belonging to the sees of Cashel, Raphoe and Ferns.

On the temporalities of the sees of Waterford, Clonfert, Killalla, Raphoe and Ossory vesting in the Commissioners, they have become chargeable to the representatives of the late Bishops with the payment of certain monies expended, under Certificates, on the building or improvement of the see-houses belonging to those sees respectively; but as each Bishop was liable, on account of any dilapidations incurred during his incumbency, the Commissioners, as successors to each of those Bishops have taken the necessary steps to sue and obtain Commissions of Dilapidations to enable them to recover such sums of money as were proper on account thereof.

The income derived by the Commissioners from the see-estates of Waterford, Clonfert and Killalla, within the period, amounted to the sum of 6,900 l. 12 s. 4 d., as will appear by the annexed Account, no available income having arisen within the period from the revenues of the other sees, which have but lately vested in the Commissioners.

Under the provision in the statute which enables the Commissioners to suspend the appointment of Clerks to benefices wherein Divine Worship had not been celebrated for the three years next preceding February 1833, we have to state that three benefices so circumstanced, as appeared by the certificate of the Bishop, having become vacant within the year without having either Church, glebe-house or glebe, namely, the benefice of Dunbyn, in the diocese of Armagh, of the annual value of 200 l., and the benefices of Erry and Killteynan, both situate in the diocese of Cashel, the former of the annual value of 77 l. 1 s. 1 d., and the latter of the annual value of 320 l.; and in each of these cases the Commissioners, with the consent of the respective diocesans, who, in these instances were members of the Board, have suspended the appointment of a clerk, and the spiritual duties have been committed to the care of curates of adjoining parishes, nominated by the respective ordinaries, and at stipends fixed by the Board.

The Archbishop of Cashel has, however, reported to the Commissioners that it would be extremely desirable that a Church should be erected in the benefice of Erry, as it appears that not only there are 53 Protestants in that parish, but 86 in the adjoining benefice of Ballysheehan, and no Church in the latter parish, or within a distance of four miles of the parishioners thereof; the Commissioners, therefore, feel the necessity of appropriating the residue of the profits and emoluments of the benefice of Erry to the purpose recommended by his Grace: at the same time, however, they cannot but regret that the means of effecting so desirable an object appear very remote, as the whole tithes, emoluments and profits of this parish amount only to 77 l. 1 s. 1 d., arising from tithe composition.

In addition to the suspension of the appointment of clerks to these benefices, we have also to report that the appointment of an incumbent has been suspended in the case of the deanery of the Cathedral Church of Lismore, and in that of the precentorship of Elphin; and in consequence of these suspensions the emoluments of both these dignities have become vested in the Commissioners: but as these emoluments for the most part, as well as those of the other benefices already mentioned, arise from tithe compositions, but little available income can be expected from any of these sources until after the 1st of November next, at which time the tithe composition becomes payable.

By the Returns of Promotions furnished by the respective diocesans on the 1st of November 1834, and 1st of May 1835, it appears that 101 benefices have become vacant; of these 37 only are liable to the tax, and the incumbents have been called upon to furnish Returns of Income, in order that the tax may be imposed as directed by the statute; but owing to the difficulty which exists in the collection of tithe compositions, the Commissioners considered they were exercising a sound discretion in extending to the clergy, under their present circumstances, the time of payment of this impost, under the provision to that effect contained in the statute; and in consequence thereof they have received no more than 7 l. 5 s. 7 d. on account of the tax: and with respect to the instalments payable by the clergy on account of monies advanced by the Board of First Fruits for building glebe-houses, there has only been received 2,140 l. 9 s. 9 d., the same circumstances having induced the Commissioners to suspend legal proceedings for the recovery thereof.

We have further to report that from the representations made by some of the curates serving in impropriate parishes, that the stipends payable by the impropriators have been withheld in some instances for a series of years, the Commissioners have been induced to institute proceedings against some of these defaulters; and although these proceedings have not as yet been attended with any beneficial effect, yet we have every reasonable expectation and hope that the Commissioners shall be enabled to support and protect the rights of the Curates serving in these cures.

The Commissioners have not failed to bring under the notice of your Excellency and the Privy Council the case of the disappropriation of tithes and glebes from and out of each and every dignity that has become vacant; and although the present state of their own general funds does not enable them to report that any monies have been granted by them out of those funds in augmentation of Small Livings, yet they have the gratification to acquaint your Excellency that by the disappropriations which have already been made, and by carrying into effect the provisions relating to Primate Boulter's Bequest, they have been enabled in 22 instances where the incomes of the clergy did not amount to 100 l. per annum, to grant monies to the annual amount of 460 l. 16 s., for the purpose of augmenting the incomes of such clergymen to 100 l. per annum out of Boulter's Fund.

We beg leave to annex to this our annual Report an Account of all Receipts and Disbursements to the 1st instant, distinguishing the sources of income, and the amount of each, with an account of the purposes to which the same have been made applicable.

All which we respectfully submit to the consideration of your Excellency.

THIRD REPORT

Of His Majesty's Commissioners of Inquiry into Ecclesiastical Revenues and Patronage in Ireland.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

WE, the Commissioners constituted and appointed for inquiring into ecclesiastical revenues and patronage in Ireland, under and by virtue of Your Majesty's royal commission, bearing date at Westminster, the 15th day of August, in the third year of Your Majesty's reign; whereby we, whose hands and seals are hereunto annexed, and the other Commissioners therein named and directed, are authorized and empowered to make a full and correct inquiry respecting the revenues and patronage belonging to the several archiepiscopal and episcopal Sees—to all cathedral and collegiate churches—and to all ecclesiastical benefices, including donatives, perpetual curacies and chapelries, with or without cure of souls, in that part of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, called Ireland;—and the names of the several patrons thereof, and other circumstances therewith connected;—and to certify to Your Majesty, from time to time, under the hands and seals of any three or more of us, the Commissioners, our several proceedings, from time to time, as the same shall be, respectively, completed and perfected;—

Do most humbly beg leave to submit to Your Majesty, that since the date of our last report relating to collegiate and cathedral churches, and to all dignitaries, prebendaries, and canons thereof respectively, our attention has been confined to the last part of the foregoing inquiry, which relates to the revenues and patronage of all ecclesiastical benefices, including donatives, perpetual curacies and chapelries, in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam.

A copy of the queries, which were directed to be transmitted to each parochial, or other, Incumbent, for the purpose of eliciting the fullest information upon the matters which are made the subject of investigation by Your Majesty's commission, we have caused to be annexed to this our present report; from which it will appear, that the several matters inquired into, with respect to ecclesiastical benefices, were—the names of the parishes constituting each benefice or union; the denomination of each parish, whether a rectory, vicarage, perpetual cure or chapelry; whether with or without cure of souls; whether subject to episcopal, or to any, and what, peculiar or exempt jurisdiction; and the names of any chapelries within each benefice, not having separate Incumbents:—the extent, acreable contents, and general quality of the land in each and every parish, and the name of the county and diocese in which each benefice is situate:—the population of the respective parishes, according to the census of 1831:—the names and dates of admission of the respective Incumbents; the number of curates employed by each Incumbent, respectively; and the amount of stipend, or other allowance, paid to each curate:—the gross and net amounts of the annual incomes of the respective benefices, the sources from whence arising, and the amount of each source of income, respectively:—the amount of any yearly payments or temporary charges, under their respective titles, charged upon, or made out of, the gross Incomes, excepting rates and taxes paid in respect of the glebe-houses and offices, repairs and Curates' stipends; whether there is a glebe-house, or not, in each Benefice; if so, when built, at what expense, or from what funds; whether under the old or new acts; the amount of the sums certified to have been expended in the building or improvement of the glebe-houses:—the sums charged on the present Incumbents, as well as those payable to them by their successors, on account of the monies supplied out of their private funds; the amounts of the gifts and loans granted by the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits for building or improving; and the amount of the annual instalments repayable on the loans aforesaid:—whether the Incumbents are usually resident within their benefices and in the glebe-houses; and if not, for what reason, and where resident; and, if there be not any glebe-house, the amount of house-rent or lodging-money payable by Incumbents:—the number of churches or chapels within each benefice; how many persons each is capable of accommodating; and, in case of more than one, their relative distances from each other; when, at what expense, and from what funds, each was built; the charges subsisting on the parishes in 1832 on account of each church; the time at which the same will be paid off; and the duty performed in each church or chapel:—the average annual amounts assessed upon the respective benefices, distinguishing the sums raised for church purposes, or at the exclusive vestries, from those raised for general purposes, or at the open and general vestries, for the three years ending 1831 or 1832:—the names of the persons to whom the advowsons of the respective benefices are reputed to belong; as also, the names of any Incumbents to whom may belong, in right of their respective benefices, the nomination to any perpetual cure, chapelry, &c.:—the names of those persons to whom are payable the rectorial tithes of benefices, and their reputed value, in case the benefices be not rectories:—and, lastly, the names and proper titles of any dignities, prebends or other ecclesiastical preferments or offices, with or without cure of souls, held by Incumbents, with the names of the counties and dioceses in which the same are, respectively, situated.

The order, here enumerated, of the several matters which are made the subject of inquiry, does not accord so precisely with the order in the printed list of queries as with that in the annexed digest;—it having been considered not inexpedient to combine and unite, under one head, the separate and distinct answers given to such subjects of our inquiry, as were more immediately connected the one with the other.

The benefices in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam amount in number to six hundred and two, which are distributed in the respective dioceses, constituting each of these provinces, as follow:—

The

These benefices, it is to be observed, are variously constituted, and consist, either of single parishes—of unions of two or more parishes—of appropriate, or impropriate, cures—and of perpetual, or district, cures. Of the benefices aforesaid, three hundred and forty-nine consist of single parishes—one hundred and fifty-nine, of unions of two or more parishes—forty-nine, of appropriate or impropriate cures—thirty-seven, of perpetual cures, in parishes of large extent —and eight, of perpetual district cures, comprised of portions of two or more parishes. In order the better to understand the nature of these several benefices, it may be considered important to the present subject to make a few observations relative to the constitution of each class of these benefices, separately.

In regard to the benefices consisting of single parishes, it is to be remarked, that in some of these parishes a Vicar never was constituted; and as the whole of the tithes are in the perception of the ecclesiastical Incumbent, the benefices so circumstanced, are denominated either rectories, or rectories entire; instances of which will be found in the dioceses of Armagh and Down, but more frequently in that of Derry. In other parishes, both Rectors and Vicars were anciently endowed; and as the canons of 1634 contained a provision for the union of these, which union took place in several instances, though not in all, such benefices are denominated rectories and vicarages; inasmuch as the tithes, both rectorial and vicarial, are enjoyed by the ecclesiastical Incumbent; examples of which occur in almost every diocese. But in all cases where the vicarial tithes are held separate and distinct from the rectorial, and by different persons, and in different capacities—laymen, for instance, being capable of holding rectorial tithes—the benefices are, in such cases, denominated only vicarages; instances of which will be found, of more frequent occurrence, in the respective dioceses of Kilmore, Dromore and Ardagh, than in others; although almost every diocese affords examples of benefices, composed of single parishes, with only the vicarial tithes set apart and reserved for the maintenance of the ecclesiastical Incumbent, consisting for the most part of one-third of the tithes. Of the benefices consisting of single parishes, and denominated either rectories, or rectories and vicarages, or only vicarages, there are three hundred and nineteen in the province of Armagh, and thirty in the province of Tuam. In some of these benefices, it appears a chapelry, having a separate Incumbent, and in others that one or two chapelries, not having separate Incumbents, have been established; and the service, as well of the chapelries, last mentioned, as of the mother or parochial church, devolves on the parochial Incumbent, aided by two or more stipendiary Curates, as occasion may require; of which, the benefices of Cleenish, Clones, Innismacsaint, Aghalurcher, Clogher, Devnish, Derryvullan and Enniskillen, in the diocese of Clogher, afford examples; as well as those of Kinawley, in the diocese of Kilmore, and of Kiltoghart and Clongesh, in the diocese of Ardagh.

With respect to the benefices consisting of unions of two or more parishes, it formed no part of the instructions contained in Your Majesty's Commission to investigate either the causes which may, from time to time, have led to these unions, or the nature and constitution of the several and respective unions. The Commissioners have therefore confined their inquiries to those matters which fell more immediately within the scope of their instructions, and it will appear that most of the subsisting unions consist of parishes, the vicarial tithes of which, for the most part, are enjoyed by the ecclesiastical Incumbents, owing, as it commonly happens, to the rectorial tithes of these parishes being appropriated to the use, either of ecclesiastical corporations, sole or aggregate, or to the rectorial tithes thereof being set apart and reserved to lay purposes; in which cases, all that remains for the discharge of the cure is the small and vicarial, or about one-third of the tithes, the remaining two-thirds generally constituting, what is termed, the rectorial or great tithes. There are, however, exceptions to this general distribution of the tithes; as, in some instances, the vicarial consist of two-thirds, and the rectorial of one-third, of the tithes, which is the case in the united benefices of Killenumery and Killery, in the diocese of Ardagh;—in others, the vicarial consist of five-ninth parts, and the rectorial of four-ninth parts, of the tithes, as appears to be the case in the united benefices of Kilmore and Ballintemple, of Drung and Larah, and of others, in the diocese of Kilmore;—and, in some instances, the vicarial and rectorial tithes are divided into equal moieties, and enjoyed by the respective Vicars and Rectors accordingly, as appears to be the case in the unions of Eastersnow, Kilmactranny and Killenvoy, in the diocese of Elphin, in those of Kilshalvee and Kilconduff, in the diocese of Achonry, and in the benefices of Kilronan and Street, in the diocese of Ardagh;—but, in some instances, the amount of the vicarial tithes is far less than one-third, which is the case in Clontuskart and Drimtemple parishes, in the diocese of Elphin, and of Clonfert, Kilmacumna, Kilrickill, Kilconickny, and other united parishes, in the diocese of Clonfert. Of the benefices, consisting of unions of two or more parishes, there are ninety-four in the province of Armagh, and sixty-five in the province of Tuam; and the gross amount of tithes in these Provinces, appropriated to ecclesiastical corporations, has been compounded for £. 19,752 19*s.* the greater portion of which is demised for terms of years, while the gross amount, set apart and reserved for lay purposes, appears to have been compounded for £.38,957. 4. 2.

The formation of the cures, appropriate and impropriate, grew out of the annexation of parishes to ecclesiastical dignities, or the reservation of them to lay uses, without any vicarages or curacies being endowed in such parishes. In the appropriate parishes, the ecclesiastical Dignitaries were, in right of their dignities, entitled to the tithes and glebes of the parishes so appropriated; as in the impropriate parishes, the tithes thereof were set apart to the use and occupation of laymen; but both parties, Ecclesiastics as well as Laymen, were bound by law to find Curates to perform divine service, and to take charge of the cure of souls within such parishes as were so appropriated or set apart, as aforesaid. The cures however of these parishes were, in many cases, only served by stipendiary Curates or Preachers officiating in the churches or chapels, which Curates were not corporations sole—were without legal succession—and therefore incapable by law of taking a grant, in way of augmentation, by endowment either of lands, or tithes, or both; and, in some places, it was apprehended that the allowance theretofore paid to the ministers or curates serving these cures, might be withdrawn by the Impropriator, Donor or Parson.

To remedy these defects, the Legislature interposed in the 29th year of the reign of King GEORGE the Second, by declaring that all appropriate or impropriate curacies or chapelries, thereafter augmented by the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits, should become perpetual cures and benefices, and that the Ministers duly nominated and licensed thereunto, and their successors, be for ever after esteemed in law bodies politic and corporate, and have perpetual succession. A similar provision, to render perpetual such cures as were served by stipendiary Curates, officiating in parishes appropriated to deaneries, dignities and prebends, was introduced under the 11th and 12th GEORGE III.;—and the like provision was extended to the cures served by stipendiary Curates in parishes appropriated to archbishoprics and bishoprics, by the act of 23d and 24th GEORGE III. Of these appropriate or impropriate perpetual cures there are forty-seven in the province of Armagh, but only two in the the province of Tuam, as all the parishes in this province have Vicars endowed. The benefices of Ballymakenny, in the diocese of Armagh—of Ardagh, Ballymore, Bonowen, Enniskeen, Forgnay and Nobber, in the diocese of Meath—and that of Larne, in the diocese of Connor, afford examples of perpetual appropriate cures;—and those of Ballymascalan and Tulloghallen, in the diocese of Armagh—of Kilbixy, Castlejordan, and Leney, in the diocese of Meath—of Comber, Newtownards, Bangor, Greyabbey and Hollywood, in the diocese of Down—and Rathaspick benefice, in the diocese of Ardagh, supply instances of perpetual impropriate cures.

In regard to these cures it is further observable, that they are co-extensive and commensurate with the appropriated or impropriated parish, and sometimes comprise an union of two or more impropriate parishes; but this is not the case with respect to the ordinary class of perpetual cures, which contain only a certain district set off in a large parish, and may be considered, of co-eval existence, with the cures appropriated to dignities;—the act of the 11th & 12th GEORGE III., which provided for the foundation of the one, containing a like provision for the erection of the other, with the exception of the four in the diocese of Armagh, established under the 7th GEORGE III.

The large extent of many parishes—the increase of the number of inhabitants—the insufficient accommodation in the parochial churches, then existing—their great distance from many of the inhabitants—and the consequent inconvenience of resorting to them—are the principal causes which led to the erection of perpetual cures in parishes, and unions, of large extent. The first statute for the foundation of such perpetual cures passed in the 7th year of George III.; but the statute of the 11th and 12th years, of the same reign, made that provision general, which before was only special, and had reference to the rectory of Armagh alone. By this statute all Archbishops and Bishops, and their successors, are by law enabled to erect, or cause to be erected, new churches or chapels in convenient places within parishes of great extent, as to them shall seem proper; provided, however, that the bounds of the respective districts, which shall belong to the cure of every new church or chapel erected, or to be erected, be set out and described in an instrument, to be enrolled under the hand and seal of the diocesan, with the consent of the Incumbent of said parish, under his hand and seal; and such preliminaries having been complied with, the act then declares, with respect to the several districts so set out and described, that they shall be deemed and reputed several and distinct parishes, for the purposes in said act mentioned, and shall be called and known by the name given to them by such instrument as aforesaid;—with respect to the several churches or chapels erected or to be erected therein, that they shall be deemed perpetual cures; and that the Curates thereof, when duly nominated and licensed, shall be capable of receiving any endowment, in the same manner, as the Curate of any impropriate or appropriate parish;—and, with reference to the Curates themselves, that they shall have perpetual succession, shall become bodies politic and corporate, and be capable of receiving and taking any such endowments in lands or tithes, or both, or any augmentation, that shall be granted to them and their successors.

The professed object, therefore, of this legislative enactment was to provide a sufficient number of churches for the celebration of divine service, at convenient distances, for the resort of the respective inhabitants;—and as chapels of ease had been erected in some of these parishes, in pursuance of the laws then in force, it also provided, that districts may be assigned to these chapels of ease, and the Curates thereof made bodies politic and corporate, and capable of enjoying all the like privileges, as before described. The benefices of Derrygortrevy, Moy, Portadown and Woods-chapel, in the diocese of Armagh—those of Drumraney and Kinnegad, in the diocese of Meath—of Derg and Fahan-lower, in the diocese of Derry—of All-Saints, in the diocese of Raphoe—of Arvagh and Mullough, in the diocese of Kilmore—and those of Monevea and Turlough, in the diocese of Tuam, afford examples of perpetual cures erected within parishes or unions of large extent;—of which Cures there are thirty-two in the province of Armagh, and five in the province of Tuam.

The erection of the perpetual district cures, formed from two or more adjoining parishes, is of recent origin; the power of creating these being, for the first time, provided for under an act of the 7th & 8th of his late Majesty King GEORGE the Fourth. Circumstances dissimilar from those which led to the foundation of perpetual cures in parishes of large extent, were the principal inducements to the creation of these district cures; namely, the existence of many parishes in Ireland which of themselves were not sufficiently large, severally and separately, to support chapels of ease. To meet the case of such parishes, the power was devised of forming districts from contiguous portions of two or more adjoining parishes, and of erecting new churches or chapels in convenient places within these districts;—and, after prescribing the mode of ascertaining the bounds of these new districts, and providing for the hearing and determining any objections that may be taken thereto on the part of the Incumbents of the several parishes from which such districts may be formed, the act declares, that on the registry and inrolment of the instrument setting out the bounds, those districts shall be deemed several and distinct districts or benefices; shall have all parochial rights for the purposes in said act mentioned, in like manner as other parishes; and be called and known by the name given to them by such instrument; that every church or chapel erected in such districts shall be deemed a perpetual cure; that the curate thereof, when duly nominated and licensed, and his successors, shall become bodies politic and corporate, and be capable of receiving any endowment in such manner as any Curate of any impropriate or appropriate parish, or perpetual cure, is qualified by law to take the same; and that the rates and proportions of salary, payable to the Curates thereof by each of the Incumbents of the adjoining parishes out of which such districts shall be formed, shall be determined by the diocesans; who are also required to appoint and direct the order and rotation, in which the several Incumbents of such adjoining parishes shall, each in their turn, nominate the Curates of such cures respectively. Of these district perpetual cures there are eight in the province of Armagh, but none in the province of Tuam; the benefices of Armaghbraig, Ballygawley and Killylea, in the diocese of Armagh—of Learmount, in the diocese of Derry—of Ardara, in Raphoe diocese—of Dunseverick, in Connor diocese—and those of Bally-James-Duff and Derryheen, in Kilmore diocese, afford examples of districts, formed from contiguous portions of two or more adjoining parishes.

Such is the nature and constitution of the parochial benefices, respectively, which will be found in the digest annexed to this our report. With respect to one class of these benefices, namely, the perpetual cures, it may be observed, that the principle of Legislation of late years will have the effect to diminish, rather than increase, the number of such, more particularly, as have been erected in appropriate parishes—by the enactment which provides for the disappropriation of any rectory, vicarage, tithes or glebes theretofore united to to any archbishopric, bishopric, deanery or other dignity or prebend; and for the annexation of same to the vicarage or perpetual curacy of the same, or of any adjoining, parish; so that each such rectory, vicarage, tithes and glebes glebes or portions thereof, shall, with its respective vicarage or perpetual curacy, form a distinct parish or benefice. The development of this principle has already been carried into effect in the benefices of Ballee, Ballyculter, Bright and Saul, which were theretofore annexed to the deanery of Down; in those of Killygarvan, Leck, Lettermacaward and Stranorlar, theretofore annexed to the deanery of Raphoe; and in the benefices of Drumbeg, Drumboe and Kilclief, theretofore annexed to the archdeaconry of Down, as will appear by a reference to these benefices, respectively, in the annexed digest.

In regard to the six hundred and two benefices in the two provinces, it will be found that there is cure of souls annexed to every one of them, with the single exception of the rectory or benefice of Killarvey, in the diocese of Meath, which is an absolute sinecure;—and it is further observable, that all the benefices aforesaid are subject to episcopal jurisdiction, with two exceptions; namely, the benefice of Newry, in the county of Down, and the benefice, intituled the "Wardenship of Galway," in the diocese of Tuam; the former of which, being situate within the lordship of Newry, is alleged to be free from episcopal jurisdiction; and the latter is reported to be an exempt jurisdiction of a peculiar sort, governed by the college and the lay corporation of Galway.

The wardenship of Galway appears to have been constituted in the fourteenth century, and to have consisted originally of eight vicars, from whom the warden was chosen annually by the lay corporation. It was erected into a royal college by charter of King Edward VI., who confirmed to it all the property and privileges it was then possessed of. By its existing constitution, which has been the subject of our inquiry, it is reported to consist of eight parishes;—and the church, situate in St. Nicholas parish, Galway, to be both collegiate and parochial; the warden, it appears, is chosen annually by the corporation, subject to the approbation of the Crown, and exercises spiritual jurisdiction over the vicars, who were formerly eight, but are now reduced to two in number; the vicars are also elected by the corporation, but inducted by the warden, and have the cure of souls over the entire union; and in case the warden or the two vicars should absent themselves, or neglect the service of the college, the corporation have the power to correct and remove them, and to elect others in their room. It appears also that one-fourth part of the tithes in each of the four parishes of Clare-galway, Oranmore, Shrule and Ballinacourty, forming part of the wardenship, are by act of Parliament vested in the patronage of the Archbishop of Tuam, and allocated for the use of clergymen, to assist the warden and vicars in the discharge of the duties of those parishes, out of which the said tithes arise.

The length and breadth of the parishes and benefices in general, as reported in the annexed digest, expressed either in English or Irish miles, but in many instances, omitted altogether from the silence of the Returns, can only be considered as their reputed, and not their real and precise, extent;—as the incumbents of the benefices, generally, appear to have had no other means of arriving at information on this point, than what common reputation or general assent afforded them. The like observation applies, with equal force, to the acreable contents of the benefices and parishes, which have all been reduced to one common measure, except, indeed, in a few dioceses, such as Armagh, Connor, Down, Dromore and Derry, where the Commissioners have been able to avail themselves of such parts of the Ordnance Survey as have been published; but in all other dioceses, particularly where the county books are the authority referred to, precise information is unattainable; and the results of the inquiries made on these subjects may be regarded rather as an approximation to, than, the precise superficies of each benefice; and with respect to the population of the respective parishes, it has been taken, in every instance, from the census of 1831.

The cure of the Six hundred and two benefices aforesaid, of which one is a sinecure, and of the twenty-three chapelries founded within some of these benefices, has been committed to the charge of six hundred and one incumbents, aided and assisted by three hundred and seventy stipendiary curates or chaplains. And the annual revenue of these benefices for the three years ending 1831, or up to the latest period the Returns have been made, appears to amount to a gross sum of £.299,111. 1. 1., and to a net sum of £.253,530. 11. 6., thereby yielding to each incumbent £.496. 17. 2¾. as the average amount of gross income, and £.421. 2. 11¼. as the average amount of net income.

The principal sources from whence these revenues arise are the Tithe compositions and glebe lands; but in regard to any other source of available revenue, it occurs so seldom and is of such inconsiderable amount in these benefices as to be quite undeserving of special notice;—the Easter offerings and small dues are entirely unknown;—the surplice fees in the country benefices appear, in general, to be but seldom, if ever, demanded;—only one of the aforesaid benefices yields any revenue from ministers' money;—and the income payable to perpetual curates, in the way of augmentation allowance out of Boulter's fund, does not, in the two provinces, exceed the sum of £.2,548. 1. 7¾. per annum.

It is however to be observed, that the average amount of gross and net incomes, as above stated, does not include any abatements on account of the £.15 per cent. allowable, by recent enactments, to such landlords as may have undertaken the payment of the tithe compositions; or of the tax chargeable, under the church temporalities act, on any promotions that may have taken place since the passing of that act; for as all the returns of income, with a few trifling exceptions, were made to the Commissioners previously to either of these enactments becoming law, they were not thought of at the time by the respective incumbents; but if these deductions be taken into account, the gross and net revenues of all parochial benefices, in future, will be considerably less than the average amounts above-mentioned.

The items which have been admitted as deductions against the gross amounts of revenue, so as to arrive at the net annual incomes of the benefices, are—the expenses of collection; the annual charges payable under the heads of parochial and diocesan schoolmasters, visitation fees, quit, crown and glebe rents, and the county cess chargeable on glebe lands; the annual instalments in repayment of monies lent by the late Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits for building glebe-houses; as also, the interest of any monies outlying, which incumbents may have paid out of their private funds on account of the glebe houses, at the rate of £.5 per cent. for such proportions thereof as are recoverable from their successors, and of £.10 per cent. for such proportions, as have been paid their predecessors but are not recoverable from their successors; and, in case there is not any glebe house, the annual amount of house-rent or lodging money paid by resident incumbents; in addition to which, wherever an incumbent is chargeable with a fixed annual money-payment to any perpetual or district cure, such payment has been allowed as a deduction against the gross amount of revenue. But it must not be supposed that these are the only demands to which the parochial clergy are subject; in many cases, it appears by the returns, that the calls on the clergy for the relief of the poor, the erection and support of schools, subscriptions to hospitals, infirmaries and various charities, are numerous, and amount to no inconsiderable sum; but as the Commissioners have viewed these, and all such like demands, in the way of voluntary, and not necessary, contributions, which the clergy may either give or withhold, as their discretion directs, they have not taken these into account as yearly or temporary payments properly chargeable, as such, on their respective benefices.

The glebe houses, of which there are Four hundred and sixty-six in number in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, have been, for the most part, erected within the present century under the old and new acts in that case made and provided—greater facilities having of late years been granted to enco urage and promote the building of glebe-houses than formerly existed until within the last five years; during which period, the facilities previously enjoyed by the clergy having been withdrawn, the instances of new houses being undertaken are extremely rare, if indeed any such instances exist.

An incumbent building or improving a glebe-house, under the old acts, must proceed according to certain prescribed regulations, in order to charge his successors with any proportion of the monies advanced out of his own private funds for such buildings or improvements; and, to this effect, he must apply by memorial to his diocesan for leave to build or improve, which, being granted, the incumbent is authorized to obtain from the diocesan a commission of view and valuation, and upon a return being made, by the commissioners appointed for that purpose, of a true and faithful account and estimate of the said buildings and improvements, the diocesan grants the incumbent a certificate under his hand and seal, which sets out the clear yearly value of the benefice, and finally settles and ascertains the sums to be allowed, as really and fairly expended; and when such certificate is duly registered in the registry of the diocese, the incumbent, or his executors and administrators respectively, become thereby entitled to recover from the next successor three-fourths of the money expended on the buildings or improvements, provided the whole expenditure shall not exceed two years' income of the benefice; and each succeeding incumbent becomes thereby also chargeable with a certain proportion of the monies so expended, less by one-fourth than the original amount of the expenditure on the erection or improvements of such glebe-house; so that the entire expense incurred is liquidated by the builder or improver, and the next three incumbents in succession; except where an incumbent builds on a new site, in which case the incumbent, or his executor, is by law enabled to recover, instead of three-fourths, the whole amount of expenditure from his next successor, provided it does not exceed the two years' income, as aforesaid; and the successor, paying the whole amount, may thereby recover three-fourths thereof from his successor, by which arrangement the whole amount expended in building on a new site will be liquidated by such building-incumbent, and the next four incumbents in succession.

In addition to the monies expended by incumbents out of their own funds, the Trustees and Commissioners of First-Fruits were, by the old acts, authorized to grant One hundred pounds in way of gift, on certificate of a proper house having been built on the glebe; which hundred pounds were not to be comprised in the Bishop's certificate, as aforesaid; but under the new acts, the monies granted by the Trustees, in way of gifts, were allowed to be increased by the sum of Fifty pounds, as the annual value of the benefice decreased by Fifty pounds below a standard amount of income, as follows;—gifts, to the amount of Two hundred pounds were allowed where the annual value of the benefice did not exceed Four hundred pounds; and gifts, to the amount of Two hundred and fifty pounds where the annual value did not exceed Three hundred and fifty pounds, and so on, the gifts increased by Fifty pounds, as the annual value of the benefice decreased by Fifty pounds, until at length the gifts amounted to Four hundred pounds, where the annual value of the benefice did not exceed Two hundred pounds, which was the greatest amount of gift allowed, with the exception of perpetual cures and benefices, not exceeding One hundred pounds in annual value, in which cases only, gifts, to the amount of Four hundred and fifty pounds were allowed to be made;—but wherever the annual value of the benefice exceeded the sum of Four hundred pounds, no greater gift than One hundred pounds was allowed to be made, towards defraying the expense of building glebe-houses.

As the new acts, however, declared it to be expedient that more effectual provision should be made for the residence of the clergy, this object was chiefly effected by means of the sums of money, which the trustees were thereby empowered to grant, in way of loans, for building glebe-houses; due regard being had to the annual value of the respective benefices. These loans of money were, in the first instance, made repayable at £.6 per cent., but were subsequently reduced to £.4 per cent., and the difference between the amount of such loans and two years' income of the benefice, the incumbents were by law enabled to advance out of their private funds, and to charge their successors with the repayment thereof in the manner provided for under the old acts, by each incumbent losing one-fourth of the money so advanced, until the whole was liquidated. Previously, however, to the commencement of any buildings or improvements under the new acts, the like regulations as have been already prescribed, in addition to the approval of the plan and estimate of the works, were rendered indispensably necessary; and, before the issue of the entire amount of the grant, a certificate was required by the statute of the due expenditure of the whole amount of the sum granted by the trustees, in addition to the amount of the value of two years' income of the benefice; or, in case of a perpetual cure, in addition to the sum of Fifty pounds. Of the loans now outstanding, as liens, on the subsisting benefices, these amount, in the two provinces, to an entire sum of £.77,654. 16. 0½., repayable by annual instalments of £.4 per cent., which will terminate about the year 1850;—and of the monies certified to have been advanced by incumbents, out of their own private funds, and remaining due for the building or improvement of glebe-houses, these also are liens on the subsisting benefices, and amount, in the two provinces, to an entire sum of £.138,976. 18. 7¼., repayable to the present incumbents by their successors, in the proportion and to the amount, specified in each case, respectively; although it will appear that, in several instances, incumbents have expended, on the building or improvement of their glebe-houses, considerably more money than the two years' income of their respective benefices; but any such excess, in some cases amounting to one thousand, and in others to fifteen hundred or two thousand pounds, is not recoverable from their successors, but a loss to be borne by the builder or improver himself, as a voluntary expenditure. With respect to these observations, it may be remarked, that we deemed it advisable to go somewhat into the detail of the statutes made and provided for the building and improvement of glebe-houses, in order to explain the nature of the inquiries instituted in this respect, and the information to be found in the annexed digest on the subject; by which it will appear, that the number of glebe-houses built, under the old acts, is considerably less than that which has been erected, under the new acts, between the years 1809 and 1830.

But the benefit of these enactments, in providing residences for the parochial clergy, is not more conspicuous and manifest than of others, of a similar nature, for the protection of religion and morality, by the encouragement and facilities afforded in the building of churches and chapels of ease; for although the common law allowed the major part of the parishioners of any parish to make a rate for the building building or enlargement of any church, with the leave of the diocesan, yet the funds required for the erection of churches in Ireland were, previously to the Union, usually supplied to a certain extent by Parliamentary grants, amounting, most commonly, to five thousand pounds per annum, made, for this purpose, to the trustees and commissioners of First-Fruits, to be applied, as to them might seem meet. The number of churches, notwithstanding, was found to be so inconsiderable, or so materially deficient, in many parts of Ireland, in the commencement of the present century, as to need the interposition of the legislature, by enabling all persons desirous of contributing to the supply of these defects, to grant lands, not exceeding five acres, or goods and chattels, not exceeding five hundred pounds, for the building or re-building of any church or chapel, &c., under the provisions of an act of the forty-third year of Geo. III.

Neither did this provision meet the exigency of the case, until at length the legislature considered it expedient, in the forty-eighth year of the same reign, to make effectual provision for the building and rebuilding of churches in Ireland, by authorizing the issue of monies to the trustees of First-Fruits, and by enabling the said trustees, in their discretion, to grant sums of money, by way of gifts or loans, upon an application in writing, accompanied by a plan and estimate of the buildings;—and, in case of loans of money, to take sufficient security from the parties applying for the due application and expenditure of the money advanced, within two years after the same was granted.

The attainment of the beneficial effects of this measure was impeded for a time, in consequence of the inconvenience resulting to individuals from entering into bonds and securities; until, in the succeeding year of that reign, this provision was repealed, and, in lieu of the security required by bond for monies advanced by way of loans, the inhabitants of any parish or place, in vestry assembled, were empowered to make an assessment upon the parish of a sum equal in amount to the entire of the loan, repayable in seventeen successive years, by instalments of £. 6. per cent., which were reduced by the fourth of Geo. IV. to £. 4 per cent. on the sums then remaining due, and on those to be subsequently advanced;—and on production of a certificate, signed by the churchwardens or two of the protestant inhabitants of any parish, that such assessments had been made, and approved by the ordinary, the trustees were authorized to advance the money accordingly; the instalments, when raised, were made payable to the churchwardens, who within twenty-one days after the first of July in every year, were bound to pay over the same to the trustees of First-Fruits.

This system of issuing monies by way of loans, repayable by annual instalments at a low rate of interest, has tended more than any other to promote the building of churches and chapels of ease in Ireland, of which there are in number, at the present time, Six hundred and forty-two in these two provinces, affording accommodation to 193,798 persons. All parts of the country seem to have availed themselves of the advantage, and considerable sums were accordingly granted by the trustees of First-Fruits, not only in the way of loans, but also in that of gifts, as those columns in the annexed digest, which relate to the building or repair of churches, will not only abundantly testify, but also furnish numerous instances of the liberality, and, in some cases, the munificence of the private donations made for the building of churches, amounting to no less a sum than £. 109,816. 15. 8. contributed, not merely by many of the nobility and gentry of the country, but also by the clergy themselves, and in some instances by public companies and institutions. Of the loans, it appears that there remained due to the trustees in the year 1832, by several parishes, various sums of money, amounting to an entire sum of £. 132,863. 10. 9½. in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, from the repayment of which the Parishioners have been wholly discharged, as all monies, so remaining due and unpaid, were remitted under the provisions of the act of the 3d and 4th Will. IV.

Connected with the subject of churches are the duties performed therein, which appear most generally to be the celebration of divine service twice on all Sundays during the summer half-year, and once during the winter half-year, and on certain festivals; the due administration of the Holy Communion; and, in general, a weekly catechetical examination of the children; although it will be found that in many of the churches, divine service is celebrated twice on Sundays during the entire of the year, and occasionally on week-days; and that in several benefices of large extent, an additional service is performed every Sunday either by the rector or curate, or on alternate Sundays, or on week-days, with leave of the ordinary, in remote districts of the benefice, more convenient for the resort of such parishioners as live at a distance from the church. Independently of the church service, it is observed in the returns made by the incumbents, that there are various duties incidental to the clerical office which are not noticed in the digest; such as marriages, burials, christenings, visitations of the sick, and such like, which latter duty becomes more onerous in those districts where the protestant population lies scattered over a large extent of territorial surface.

Formerly all church rates and cesses were made and agreed to by the churchwardens and the major part of the protestant parishioners in vestry assembled, and these rates were imposed, applotted, collected and levied by the acts in that case made and provided; all which acts, or such parts thereof as relate to church rates and cesses, were repealed, and a new provision introduced by the 7th Geo. IV. for the regulation of these matters in future. By one of these regulations, all rates for the building, re-building, enlarging or repair of any church or chapel, for providing things necessary for the celebration of divine service therein, the election of churchwardens, the salaries of parish clerks or sextons, and the demising or disposal of any estate, or the income thereof, held in trust for any church, are directed to be proceeded with at a vestry holden for these purposes, and none other; at which vestries no inhabitant of such parish, being a Roman Catholic, was rendered capable of voting; the vestries so holden are commonly called exclusive vestries, or vestries holden for church purposes; but by the other regulation contained in this Statute, every parishioner, chargeable with church rate or cess, of whatever religious persuasion he may be, is declared eligible to vote at vestries for any purposes other than those hereinbefore specially mentioned, which vestries are commonly called the general, or open vestries.

This enactment, therefore, will explain the nature of the distinction taken in the annexed digest between the sums voted at the exclusive, from those voted at the general, vestries; and, although in some parishes vestries have been held since the passing of the act, for exclusive or church purposes, separate and distinct from those holden for general purposes, yet this has been by no means an universal practice, for in many parishes there has been but one vestry holden, and that an exclusive vestry, at which the sums required for general purposes, continued to be voted as usual; while, in other parishes the general vestry was the only vestry held, at which the sums required for church purposes were as readily granted; so that, in those parishes, where the distinction between church and general purposes was not recognized and acknowledged by a separate and distinct vestry being held for each purpose, no other means presented itself of ascertaining the relative amount of each item, than by classifying the several items and sums voted at one and the same vestry, though for purposes in themselves totally different and distinct; which classification became the more important from the consideration that all rates and assessments for exclusively exclusively church purposes have been declared totally void, and have wholly ceased and determined, under the provisions of the act of the 3d & 4th Will. IV., the amount of which assessments for church purposes, in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam alone, for the three years ending 1831 or 1832, averages at an annual gross sum of £.26,836. 5. 10. while the annual amount of the sums, required for general purposes, in the three years ending as aforesaid, averages at £.11,289. 8. 1½. which latter assessments are not remitted under the provisions of the aforesaid statute, the purposes to which they are made applicable being of a general nature, and no way referable to any church purpose whatsoever; such as, the care and maintenance of foundlings and deserted children, the providing coffins for the poor, repairs of graveyards and houses of sextons, supply of graveyard implements, salaries of vestry clerks, parish beadles, constables, and such like; in some parishes the repairs of Roman Catholic chapels and dissenting meeting houses have been provided for at the general vestries, and in others, the repair of bye-roads, which latter is applicable and in use only in some parts of the diocese and county of Armagh, under the special provisions of the Ulster Road act.

With respect to the patronage of the six hundred and two benefices in these provinces, about two-thirds thereof, or four hundred and twenty-three, either belong to the collation of the Archbishops, and Bishops of the respective dioceses, or to the incumbents in right of their respective benefices, and in regard to the remainder, or one hundred and seventy-nine benefices, fifty-three appear to belong to Your Majesty's patronage, one hundred and three to lay and corporation patronage, and the residue is vested in alternate or such like presentation, the particulars of which are specified in the case of each benefice, respectively, in the annexed digest.

And, lastly, for the names or proper titles of any benefices or other ecclesiastical offices now held by each incumbent respectively; and for all the particulars and other circumstances, connected as well with each benefice individually, as with each diocese at large, we beg leave most respectfully to refer to the columns of the tabular digest hereunto annexed for the details, and to the summaries subjoined to each diocese for the results, of our inquiries into the revenues and patronage of all ecclesiastical benefices in the two provinces of Armagh and Tuam, as calculated to afford much fuller and more satisfactory information respecting them, than it would be possible to comprise in any general statement on the subject.

All which is most humbly submitted to Your Majesty's consideration, by

JOHN G. ARMAGH. (L.S.)

Acton Glebe-house was erected in 1788, under the old acts; but at what expense does not appear, otherwise than that 138*l.* 9*s.* 2¾*d.* British, was granted as free gift by the late board of First Fruits for the purpose. The present Incumbent, who is third in succession from the builder, paid 29*l.* 10*s.* 9½*d.* to his predecessor, and has a charge of 20*l.* upon his successor. The perpetual Curate is resident in the Glebe-house.	One church, capable of accommodating 250 persons, built in 1788, at an expense of 300*l.* and upwards, one-half of which was a gift from the late Board of First Fruits, and the other half a gift from the late Dr. Leslie and the landlord, the late Mr. Stewart. No charge remained on the parish in 1832 on account of the church. There are morning and evening services every Sunday during the six summer months, and morning service, only, during the rest of the year, and on the four great festivals. Arboe Glebe-house, with the exception of a small part, was condemned on the appointment of the present Incumbent: the uncondemned part was built about 50 years since, under the old acts, but at what expense does not appear from the Return: the Incumbent, who is third in succession from the builder, paid the executors of his predecessor 300*l.*, of which sum 150*l.* remains a charge on the benefice payable by his successor. The condemned part is now in progress of repair, and an addition is being made to it, out of Incumbent's own resources, he having the power to charge the benefice with three-fourths of the whole cost, amounting to something less than 600*l.* The Incumbent intends always to live in the Glebe-house when ready for occupation; at present he resides in the Curate's house.	One church, capable of accommodating 250 persons, built about the year 1710, but at what cost is unknown. No charge on the parish in 1832 on account of the church. Divine service is performed twice on Sundays during eight months, and once during the remainder of the year; weekly Lectures are delivered in different parts of the parish. Ardee Glebe-house was built in the year 1781, under the old Acts, at a certified expenditure of 932*l.* 7*l.* 6½*d.*, the whole of which was paid off previously to the appointment of Incumbent, who is seventh in succession from the builder: the present Incumbent was not chargeable with the payment of any sum to his predecessor, neither has he any demand against his successor. Incumbent is constantly resident in the Glebe-house.	Ardee church is supposed to have been built by Roger de Peppard, in the beginning of the 13th century, and was given to the Friars of St. John; part of it was destroyed in the time of the Commonwealth, and the remainder has been rendered capable of accommodating 300 persons. No charge on the parish in 1832 on account of this church. The whole of the tithes of Smarmore parish belong to representatives of the late Lord Carlingford, who are the proprietors of the land, and demise the tithes & land together, without any distinction. The Vicar only receives tithe composition out of Kildemock and Stickillen parishes, the amount of which has been already stated under column 7.
No Glebe House. N.B.—The union and deanery of Armagh having been held for the last fifty years by the same Incumbent, it is observed that, under an erroneous supposition of the union and deanery being one benefice, the Incumbent's house was built, under the old Acts, on the deanery lands, within a short distance of the town, at a certified expenditure of 2,561*l.* 0*s.* 7½*d.* Brit. But owing to the error of building on the deanery, instead of the rectorial, lands, no legal charge can be enforced under the building certificate against the present Incumbent, who is the next in succession to the builder, although he has voluntarily agreed to pay to his predecessor's executors the proportion of the building charge, amounting to 640*l.* 5*s.* 1¾*d.* to which he would, by law, have been subject, had the house been built on the rectorial glebe; with interest, during his incumbency, at the rate of 4*l.* per cent. on the residue, amounting to 1,280*l.* 10*s.* 3¾*d.* and to assign over to said executors all right and title he may be supposed to have for the recovery of said residue from his successor. Incumbent is constantly resident in the deanery-house. The cathedral and parochial church is capable of accommodating 750, and St. Mark's chapel 1,134, persons. The time and expense at which the cathedral was erected are unknown: St. Mark's chapel was built in 1832, at the cost of 3,691*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.* of which sum, 1,900*l.* was granted in way of loan by the late Board of First Fruits, 262*l.* by way of donation from Primate Beresford, and 1,529*l.* 18*s.* 2*d.* was raised by parochial assessment and sale of gallery pews. There remained 2,326*l.* chargeable on the parish in 1832, on account of this chapel, repayable by annual instalments. Divine service is celebrated twice on all Sundays and on the festivals in the cathedral and chapel of ease; and once on all Wednesdays and Fridays in the cathedral. Divine service is performed in the cathedral twice, and in the chapel of ease once on Sundays; but evening service is performed every Sunday in a school-house in Five-mile-town district, during the spring, summer, and part of the autumn months, in a situation the most remote from the chapel of ease.

Evening service is also celebrated, and a sermon delivered by Incumbent, or one of his Curates, at Augher village, for the benefit of such persons as, from age or infirmity, are unable to attend the church of Clogher. The Sacrament is administered in the cathedral monthly, and on the festivals, and in the chapel of ease quarterly.

Killany glebe-house, built originally under the old acts in 1769, at a certified expense of 520*l.* 16*s.* British; and in 1784, offices were added by the building Incumbent, at a certified expense of 209*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* British; both of which sums, with the exception of 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* granted by the late board of First Fruits as a gift, were supplied by the building Incumbent out of his own resources; and his immediate successor also expended a sum to the amount, apparently, of 154*l.* 1*s.* 4*d.* British, in improving the house and offices. The present Incumbent paid his predecessor 473*l.* or thereabouts, and being second in succession to the builder of the house and offices, and next in succession to the last improver, he will be entitled to receive from his successor 275*l.* 0*s.* 10¼*d.* on account of the building and improvement charges. It is observed, that although the present Incumbent has at different periods expended at least 700*l* in substantial improvements, he has not as yet applied for a certificate so as to charge his successor with the repayment of any portion thereof. Incumbent, although occasionally, is not permanently, resident in the glebe-house, in consequence of his liability to an internal dangerous disease of an inflammatory nature, requiring the most skilful medical treatment. The Curate always resides in the glebe-house.	Killany church, capable of containing eighty persons, was partially rebuilt and entirely new-roofed in the year 1789; but as to the date of its erection, or the funds from whence the building or rebuilding were provided, cannot be ascertained. No charge on the parish in 1832, on account of the church. Divine service is performed in the church once on Sundays, and on Christmas-day and Good Friday; and during the summer months service is performed on Sunday evenings at the police station, instead of the church, for the convenience of the parishioners residing near said station, and in consequence of the small number attending the evening service in the church. Athboy glebe-house, built under the new acts in 1818, at a cost of 1,615*l.* 7*s.* 8¾*d.* British; of which, 969*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* was advanced in way of loan, and 92*l.* 6*s.* 1¾*d.* in that of gift by the late board of First Fruits, and the residue of 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* was provided by the builder out of his own funds; to whom the present Incumbent is next in succession, and of the sum last-mentioned he will be entitled to receive from his successor three-fourths, or 415*l.* 7*s.* 8¼*d.* Of the loan aforesaid, there remained 697*l.* 16*s.* 9*d.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 38*l.* 11*s.* 8*d.* Incumbent and Curate are both resident in the glebe-house.	The church, situated in Athboy parish, capable of containing only 300 persons, is quite insufficient for the accommodation of the congregation; the building is so old, that it is reported to be impossible to ascertain at what expense or from what funds it was erected; there was not any charge on the union in 1832 on account of it. It is also reported, that there is great want of funds for the enlargement of the church, which is very necessary, as many of the parishioners are excluded for want of room. Clonmacnoise glebe-house, built in 1744, but at what cost or from what funds supplied is unknown; it was new roofed, however, about 15 years ago, at an expense of about 90*l.* by the present Incumbent, who will be entitled to receive about 67*l.* 10*s.* from his successor, on account thereof. Incumbent is always resident in the glebe-house.	The church is capable of containing 80 persons; the antiquity of the edifice is such that no record remains of the date or cost of its erection; about 99 or 100 years ago it was a mere ruin, but it was repaired and new roofed by means of parochial assessment. The benefice is not a rectory: the rectorial, consisting of a moiety of the tithes, are not paid at all, as, for instance, no tithe of hay or potatoes is, or was, payable to the rector, who is dean of Clonmacnoise, and paid by rents of glebe lands only. The deanery is reported to be a sinecure.	None.	None.
Colpe glebe-house was presented in 1815 to the Incumbent of this benefice and his successors by the late James Brabazon, of Mornington, esq., by whom the house was built; but the materials are reported to be very bad, and the timber of it to consist mostly of wreck timber. The house and glebe of Colpe having been valued by a jury, Mr. Brabazon, who had only a life-interest in the premises, left the sum of 923*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.* Brit. to fine down part of the rent. Incumbent was not chargeable with any sum to his predecessor, neither has he any charge against his successor, on account of the house, which, although suitable for residence, is not large enough for the family of the present Incumbent, who resides on the borders of the parish, within a mile and a half of the church. The Curate has resided in the glebe-house, which has sometimes been let for a bathing lodge in the summer.	One church, situated in Colpe parish, capable of containing 150 persons, built in 1809, by means of a gift of 553*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* British, granted by the late board of First Fruits. The tithes of Colpe parish, which are wholly impropriate, belong to Mr. Pollard, of Castlepollard, and have been compounded for 165*l.*, a portion of which was purchased by the late board of First Fruits, to endow therewith the Incumbent of St. Peter's, Drogheda; but the vicar of this parish does not receive any emolument from the tithes thereof. The rectorial tithes of Kilsharvan parish, the value of which is not known, belong to George Pepper, of Mesney, esq., with the exception of the rectorial tithes of Balgeen townland, which, with the vicarial tithes of said parish, compounded for 40*l.* per annum, are the property of the vicar. One church, capable of accommodating 300 persons, built in 1813, at the cost of 1,107*l.* 13*s.* 10¼*d.* Brit.; of which sum, 738*l.* 9*s.* 2¾*d.* was granted in way of gift, and 369*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* in that of loan by the late board of First Fruits. There was not any charge on the parish in 1832 on account of the church. Divine service is performed twice on Sundays during six months, and once during the remainder of the year. N. B.—A perpetual cure, by name Ballyculter, had been erected within Ballyculter parish, which was appropriated and annexed to the deanery of Down; but by Order in Council of 31st October 1834, the rectory of Ballyculter was disappropriated from the deanery, and said rectory, with the perpetual cure thereof, formed into a separate and distinct parish. The two detached townlands of Killard, Upper and Lower, with the tithe composition and cure of souls thereof, were, by said Order, severed from Ballyculter parish, and annexed for ever to the adjoining parish of Kilcleif;—and the tithe composition arising from the townlands of Raholpe and Ballintleave in Ballyculter parish, severed from said rectory, and united for ever to the parish of Saul; providing, however, that the cure of souls within these townlands shall continue to belong to Ballyculter rectory. And in lieu of such severance, the three detached townlands of Whitehill, Ballinarry and Ballynagarick, with the tithe composition arising therefrom, were, by order aforesaid, disunited from Saul parish, and united for ever to the adjoining parish of Ballyculter; annexing, however, at the same time, the cure of souls within these townlands to the adjoining parish of Kilcleif.

N.B.—By Order of Council bearing date the 31st Oct. 1834, the rectories of Saul, Ballyculter, Ballee and Bright, were disappropriated from and out of the deanery of Down, and same, with their perpetual cures respectively, were erected into separate and distinct parishes; save and except the tithe composition arising from the seven townlands of Sleivenagriddle, Loughmoy, Carrownacow, Ballyrennal, Ballyallen, and Upper and Lower Ballynagross, in Ballee parish, which was annexed for ever to the deanery of Down;—save also the tithe composition arising from the four townlands of Errinagh, Castleskreene, Ballynoe and Cunniamstown, in Bright parish, which was also annexed for ever to said deanery—providing, however, that the cure of souls in the aforesaid townlands shall continue to belong to the Rectors of Ballee and Bright, respectively. And by Order in Council, dated the 9th Oct. 1834, the detached townland of Rincreach was disunited from the parish of Kilcleif, and annexed for ever, with the tithe composition therefrom arising, and the cure of souls within the same, to the rectory of Down.	N.B.—The length and breadth of Tyrella, as above stated, includes the three Ballykinlars belonging to ChristChurch, Dublin, which contains about 1,444 acres, the whole of which, with the exception of 100 acres of good land, is reported to consist of a sandy soil.	The land in Down parish is reported, in general, to be of a good quality, but that in Tyrella to be of an indifferent sort.			N.B.—It is observed, that there are other disputed lands in the deanery, to which the Dean lays claim; which circumstance is merely noticed, lest otherwise the future claims of the Dean of Down and his successors might be prejudiced.	Under the act of 30 Geo. 3, chap. 43, the tithes of the deanery, as lately constituted, stood charged with an annuity of 276*l.* 18*s.* 5½*d.* for the repairs, &c. of the cathedral, which charge was so apportioned on the parishes disappropriated from the deanery of Down, by Order of Council, bearing date 31st October 1834, as to leave a residue of the aforesaid annuity of only 127*l.* 13*s.* 3*d.* chargeable on the tithes of the deanery, as at present constituted.

No glebe-house in Balla, Minola or Rosslee parishes. Incumbent is non-resident. N.B.—The glebe-house, and ten acres of glebe in Drum parish, formerly enjoyed by the Incumbent of this benefice, is not in his possession.—See Note. N.B.—The Incumbent deemed it necessary, for the information of the Ecclesiastical Revenue Commissioners, chiefly with reference to Queries 9, 12 and 14, to acquaint them with some peculiar circumstances connected with the prebend of Balla; and observes, "that the union of Balla comprises six parishes; three, viz. Balla, Minola and Rosslee, belong to the prebendary of Balla; and three, viz. Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, to the Vicars Choral of Christ Church; that in the last-named parish is the union church, a glebe of about ten acres, and a glebe-house; that the Protestant families of the prebend of Balla, with a few exceptions, reside in the village of Minola; that from the period the Vicars Choral obtained their grant, in the reign of King Charles the Second, they gave to the prebendaries of Balla one-third of the tithes of the parishes of Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, with the glebe and glebe-house, for discharging the duties of the union, and acting as their Curates; but finding the tithes become valuable, they determined to dispossess the prebendaries of their thirds, and leased them to the late Dr. Spray, he undertaking to carry on the legal proceedings which should be found necessary; and accordingly Dr. Spray instituted a suit against Incumbent's immediate predecessor, the rev. John Davis, which, on his succeeding to the benefice, was continued against him; and after much litigation, it was ascertained that, notwithstanding the long and undisturbed possession of the Incumbents of Balla, the right of ownership to the parishes of Ballintubber, Towaghty and Drum, lay with the Vicars Choral, and the Incumbent of Balla was regularly evicted from these thirds of tithes, and dispossessed of the glebe-lands of Belcarra, and the new glebe-house he had built 'pendente lite.' Since that period the duties of the union have been done, and the house and glebe-lands occupied, by the rev. James Hamilton, to whom half a Curate's salary is paid by the Incumbent of Balla, in consideration of his discharging the cure of souls in his moiety of the union. From whence Incumbent observes, that his being a non-curist was occasioned by an eviction from his church, glebe and glebe-house, by law, whereby he sustained a loss of one-third of the tithes, and a moiety of the union, valued at about 200*l.* per annum; that were it necessary for him to reside, which, as the cure of souls is duly provided for, is not the case, he could not obtain a fit dwelling-place within the parishes comprising the prebend of Balla; and since his eviction from the cure and emoluments attached to this portion of the union, and since the Vicars Choral have been in possession of the entire tithes, they have refused to contribute to the support of the Curate, although, as incumbent considers, the cure of souls of the union should be entirely defrayed by them." With respect to the parishes of Drummonaghan, Ballintubber and Towaghty, it appears that there is a new church in Drummonaghan parish, capable of accommodating 160 persons, built about eighty years ago by the board of First Fruits, but at what cost unknown; in which church divine service is generally celebrated twice on Sundays in summer, and once in winter, and on the festivals, and the Sacrament administered four times in the year; that there is a glebe-house in said parish in possession of the Curate, which house was built in 1822 by the present Incumbent of Balla union under the new acts, at an expense of 489*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* Brit., granted by the late board of First Fruits; viz. 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.* in way of gift, and 73*l.* 16*s.* 11*d.* in that of loan; of which loan there remained 118*l.* 4*s.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 5*l.* 18*s.*	No church in Balla, Minola or Rosslee parishes. N.B.—There is a church in Drum parish.	None.	The Diocesan.	The benefices constituting this union are rectories.	None.	Besides the benefices of Balla, Minola and Rosslee, with cure;—Incumbent holds, united therewith, the prebend of Balla, without cure, founded in the cathedral church St. Mary's, Tuam.

Divine service is celebrated in the church twice on Sundays during the summer months, and once during the winter months and on the festivals. Service is also celebrated in private houses twice on all Sundays in the northern district of Ballinakill, and in the southern district of Moyrus parishes, and once on the festivals. Of the loan aforesaid, there remained 302*l.* 19*s.* chargeable on the benefice in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 19*l.* 7*s.* 3*d.* Incumbent is resident in the glebe-house. Two glebe-houses in this union, in excellent repair, both built under the new acts, the one situate in Clonfert, and the other in Clontuskart, parishes; the former, built in 1817, at an expense of 738*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.* British; whereof 369*l.* 4*s.* 7½*d.* was granted in way of gift, and a sum, to the same amount, in way of loan, by the late board of First Fruits;—the latter was built in 1822, at an expense of 738*l.* 9*s.* 3*d.* British, granted by the late board of First Fruits; viz. 323*l.* 1*s.* 6½*d.* in way of gift, and 415*l.* 7*s.* 8½*d.* in way of loan. Of the loan on Clonfert house, there remained 206*l.* 6*s.* 9*d.* chargeable on the parish in 1832, repayable by annual instalments of 12*l.* 2*s.* 9*d.*; and of the loan on Clontuskart house there remained 282*l.* 9*s.* 8*d.* chargeable on that parish, repayable by annual instalments of 16*l.* 12*s.* 4*d.* Incumbent resides within the benefice, and, although resident in the see-house with his father, a portion of his family occupies the Clonfert glebe-house, which is not more than a few hundred yards distant from the see-house; a Curate is constantly resident in the glebe-house of Clontuskart. N.B.—It is reported that Incumbent has not any charge against his successor on account of the building of either of these glebe-houses, although it would appear that nearly 1,800*l.* British was expended by him on the Clonfert house, without certificate, so as to enable him to charge successor with the repayment of any part thereof.	Two churches in this union, one the cathedral and parochial church, situate in the parish and town of Clonfert, and the other situate in Clontuskart parish, at a distance of nearly seven miles; the former capable of accommodating 150, and the latter 120 persons; no record exists of the date of the erection of Clonfert church, otherwise than that its architectural construction would indicate it to be of the reign of King Henry II. Clontuskart church, built in 1818, at the cost of 830*l.* 15*s.* 4½*d.* Brit. granted in way of gift by the late board of First Fruits. No charge on the union in 1832, on account of either of these churches.
